Research Experience

2019-present Graduate Research Assistant
Ph.D., Oceanography
Advisor: LuAnne Thompson
Studying monthly and seasonal air-sea heat exchange and sea surface temperature variability with satellite observations.

2018 Physical Oceanography Research

Title: Is Jet-Scale Overturning Circulation Present in the North Atlantic Ocean?
Analyzed 10 years of Argo float data to attempt to identify overturning circulation in the North Atlantic Ocean. Collaborated with professors and graduate students. Conveyed research findings and significance through a speed talk, a poster, and a scientific report.

2017 Climate Research and Outreach
Universidad Nacional de Costa Rica
Advisors: Dr. Javier Espeleta, Dr. Sergio Molina, Vanessa Valerio Hernandez, Fabiola Rodriguez
Evaluated 20 years of meteorology data and disaster reports to assess risk in Barva and Quepos, Costa Rica. Communicated with municipal councils to understand and generate local climate policies. Produced a report on the climate threats facing Barva and Quepos.
